

Difference and belonging

Sometimes we may wonder where we fit in at church. If I am not rostered on for a job, am I needed? If there are no other people of my exact age, with the same interests and life situation, do I fit in? But the Christian church is God' model of diversity and unity. In 1 Corinthians 12, Paul compares the church to the human body:

Just as a body, though one, has many parts, but all its many parts form one body, so it is with Christ. For we were all baptized by one Spirit so as to form one body—whether Jews or Gentiles, slave or free—and we were all given the one Spirit to drink. Even so the body is not made up of one part but of many.

Now if the foot should say, "Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body," it would not for that reason stop being part of the body. And if the ear should say, "Because I am not an eye, I do not belong to the body," it would not for that reason stop being part of the body. (1 Cor. 12:12-16)

Christianity is the most globalised and culturally diverse religion in the world. It is for all people, and incorporates everyone who trust in Christ into the church. It translates across ages, languages, people groups and political systems. Inside the church the full spread of society is welcomed and represented. Outside of certain essentials, living for Christ can be expressed in many ways.

Within the church gathering and community, our differences strengthen one another. Where the parts of a human body rely on one another. So too our differences contribute and help others to grow up into Christ and live for him. Be it through your presence, your Christlike words and prayers, or specific roles, you can and do bless others at church!
